

LEVY'S TALE OF R. VAN COTT.

COLONIZATION INFORMER IS A FLUENT WITNESS.

He Wanted to "Wash His Hands Away" When Cashier McAvoy and Jones Washed Their Hands Away—Picked Up "Swab Boys" Among the Broadway Statues.

The case of Richard Van Cott, son of Postmaster Cornelius Van Cott, and Banker McAvoy, cashier of the post office, charged with attempting to colonize voters in the Fifth Assembly district, of which Postmaster Van Cott is the Republican leader and his son the deputy leader, had another airing before Justice Wyatt in another Special Sessions yesterday afternoon.

The only witness examined was Benjamin Levy of 177 East Seventy-fourth street, the young man who says he provided the colonists by order of Van Cott and McAvoy, and who then confessed the whole business to Deputy Attorney-General Collins. Levy told substantially the same story as is contained in his published affidavit. He said he got something more than 100 colonists, many of whom he and Ralph Jones, a clerk in the office of the superintendent of mails, distributed among the following lodging houses:

23 Greenwich avenue, 2 Washington place, 112 West Eleventh street, Christopher street, 23 East Fourth street, Mr. Van Cott, 25 West 14th street, 235 and 143 West Fourth street, 177 East 74th street, 24 Third avenue, 33 Bank street.

"Did you know what these men were expected to do?" asked Mr. Collins. "Sure, I did," replied the witness. "I got my instructions from the day on Sept. 29 or 30. He told me to give each of the gentlemen $1 for registration, to pay their room rent for six weeks, and give me $2 for voting the straight Republican ticket."

The witness told about receiving money from both Van Cott and McAvoy to pay the room rent for the colonists and said that on one occasion Van Cott got a one hundred dollar bill changed, gave $50 to Jones and the same amount to him. The first house in which any men were placed was 19 Christopher street.

"I took a couple of the gentlemen down there," said the witness, "and they were like the accommodations, and wouldn't stay. On Oct. 2 I sent five men each to 108 East Eleventh street, 106 East Tenth street and 143 Fourth street. Mr. Van Cott gave me slips of paper with the house numbers on them. The next night I placed thirteen men. The last time I saw Mr. Van Cott before I saw him in court was on the night of last Monday week, the day room rent was due. Saw him on the street, and he said: 'Wa-ta-ta!' Then he went into the Brovost Hotel."

"When did you last see McAvoy?" the witness was asked. "Last Wednesday a week ago," was the answer. "Then Mr. McAvoy says, 'Ben, my hands is all washed away. Richard says he won't have anything more to do with this, and I've got my hands washed in the post office. If anything should come out about this colonizing business—I, I'm a married man.'"

"I says, 'So I'm a married man. Well, you heard anything?' He said, 'No, and I says, 'Well, if you haven't heard anything, what do you want to wash your hands away for? If you have heard anything, tell me, and I'll get my hands washed away.' That was at the Lincoln Club. A little later, Jones said to me, 'Richard says where and he was going to wash his hands away. But before that Jones says to me: 'Ben, can you get me some swell boys? He said, 'Sure, I will,' says he, 'get me some swell boys.'"

"Where did you get the swell boys?" asked Mr. Collins. "On Broadway," was the answer. "Thirty-seventh street and Broadway. I got all the boys either at the Mills Hotel or on Broadway."

The witness identified four of the "gentlemen" among the seven detained witnesses as among those he had found rooms for. One was a "red-headed fellow" who was adjourned until next Monday at 3 P. M.

ARRANGED THE MEGAPHONE.

Three Markers and the Garden Theatre Gain Nothing by Counter Arrests.

Magistrate Mayo had to listen to about thirteen volleys of charges and counter-charges from ticket speculators and Garden Theatre men, in Jefferson Market police court yesterday. The three Marks brothers, Phil, Isidor and Sam, were all complainants. Baylis Payne, the megaphone man of the Garden Theatre, was the prisoner. He was arrested at the request of Phil Marks for disturbing the peace of Sam Marks, who lives across the street from the theatre, at 63 Madison avenue.

WONT ENJOIN POLICE.

Justice Smith Denies Application of Mott Street Saloonkeeper.

Supreme Court Justice Smith, in Brooklyn, yesterday denied the application of Antonino Caruso for an injunction to restrain Police Captain Frederick Martens of the Mulberry street station and Inspector George Titus from keeping patrolmen in front of the petitioner's saloon at 118 Mott street.

Caruso said that the presence of the uniformed men kept his customers away from the saloon and that he was losing money. He denied that there had ever been an arrest in his place. Captain Martens put in several affidavits to show that he was keeping patrolmen in front of the saloon and that he was losing money. He denied that there had ever been an arrest in his place. HOW MISS DOLBEER DIED.

Detective Contradicts Details of Miss Warren's Story in Will Contest.

The taking of depositions for use in the contest over the will of Miss Bertha Dolbeer, the California heiress, who committed suicide at the Waldorf-Astoria in July, continued yesterday at the office of Referee Robert E. Lee at 100 Wall street. Miss Dolbeer, testified that Miss Warren, the friend and companion of Miss Dolbeer, to whom she left the bulk of her fortune, was in the room with her when she jumped directly to the window from which she jumped.

TWO STRUCK WITH ONE BULLET.

Result of the Accidental Discharge of a Gun in the Adirondacks.

UTICA, Oct. 19.—With two members of the party carrying bullet wounds, three Uticans, Frank Faudoin, Gustave Daur and William Baudoin, returned to-day from a deer hunting expedition in the Adirondacks. A single rifle shot caused the injury to the two hunters, and the bullet is at present about evenly divided between them. In Frank Faudoin's right shoulder one-half of the bullet is lodged, and the other half is in Mr. Daur's right thigh and right ankle.

SMASHED LAWYERS COUPE.

Magistrate Fined Truck Driver $2 to Show That Justice Is Busy.

Edward K. Jones, a lawyer at 49 Wall street, appeared in Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday as a complainant against a truck driver, of 531 Sylvester di Mare, day of the suicide, that was Tuesday night, when a truck and another piece lodged in Mr. Daur's right thigh, and another piece tore through his right shoe, into his ankle. Although suffering from a fractured neck, he walked twelve miles to a doctor's residence.

BURNED WHEN AUTO BLEW UP.

Insurance Man Has a Lively Experience With His Machine.

STAMM, N. J., Oct. 19.—George G. Stevens, an insurance man, had trouble with his automobile yesterday morning, and he took it to a repair shop. When he returned from New York last night he called for it and took it home, leaving it in the garage at the rear of his house. After supper he thought he would take a ride, and he entered the garage, scratching a match as he did so to light the lamps.

GIRL GETS $40,000 VERDICT FOR INJURIES.

West Chicago Street Railroad Company, for Injuries Sustained in 1895, when she was Run Down and Mangled in Front of her Home.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—To Emma Grenell, 15 years old, who was awarded a verdict for $40,000 damages against the West Chicago Street Railroad Company, for injuries sustained in 1895, when she was run down and mangled in front of her home, the jury returned a verdict yesterday. She is apparently strong and healthy, but an empty sleeve hangs at her left side and right hand. The company has moved for a new trial.

THIS WOMAN MURDERED.

Autopsy Discloses Two Gunshot Wounds in Her Body.

BROOKLYN, N. J., Oct. 19.—County Physician Diamond made an autopsy this afternoon on the body of Mrs. Frank Rasmussen, who was found dead on the floor of her farmhouse near Bridgeton yesterday afternoon. The theory had been that she committed suicide, although this was only tenable on the ground that she had put the muzzle of a heavy shotgun against her breast and, leaning over, succeeded in pulling the trigger.

The post mortem revealed two distinct gunshot wounds, one charge passing through the lower part of the stomach and the other tearing away the left side of the heart and lodging in the neck. It seems incredible to the officials that she could have caused both wounds. Added to this there was but one shell, an empty one, found in the gun afterward. There was no key in the lock of the door.

The position of the woman on the floor gives rise to suspicion, but nothing thus far has been found to connect any one with the crime of murder. Her husband was in the barn at the time the shooting occurred, and says the report of the gun sounded to him like a door slamming. He did not go into the house until five or ten minutes afterward. He says but little about the case, declaring he knows nothing.

$300 FOR TUCK TWINS.

Edward Tuck Sends the Money From Paris in the Interests of the Family.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 19.—Dr. and Mrs. Albert E. Tuck of Rockport, who were presented with twins last January, have been surprised by the receipt of a check for $300 for the twins. The check was from Edward Tuck, a New York banker, who is in Paris, and was forwarded to the grandfathers of the twins, Dr. George O. Tuck, in this city.

In 1877 the genealogy of the descendants of Robert Tuck, one of the settlers of Hampton, N. H., in 1638, was published by Joseph Dow of Hampton. The Hon. Amos Tuck of Exeter and his son, Edward Tuck, paid the cost of publication. In 1888 Dr. George Tuck applied to the author for a copy, and $200 was received for the same. The name of Edward Tuck, who wrote:

"I have no brothers and no sons and only two male children, and the name of Tuck, so that if the name is to be perpetuated, the rest of you will have to attend to it." When the twins were born, Edward Tuck was informed of the fact and rendered of his remarks. On Monday a letter was received from him with $100 for each of the Tuck boys. Edward Tuck has given $200,000 to the college in memory of his father.

THEN THE AUTHORITIES CAME DOWN ON W. S. WARNER.

Perhaps His Letter Calling the Secretary of the Panama Canal Commission an Idiot Hurried Things—Registered for $1 as Applicant for a Job.

Warburton S. Warner, the proprietor of the International Labor Exchange at 11 West Twenty-fourth street, a licensed employment agency, was hauled up before Commissioner Francis L. C. Keating yesterday to explain the inner workings of the "special registration bureau" he had established for securing jobs for applicants on the Panama Canal.

The matter came to the attention of the License Department through an advertisement. The law forbids employment agencies to promulgate false or misleading advertisements or circulars. The advertisement reads: THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR EXCHANGE, 11 West 24th St., is now doing applications for clerical, trade and mechanical positions in Panama Canal, and is now sending stamps for circulars and blank form of application.

Mr. Warner also sent out circulars saying that the bureau had been established for Panama Canal contractors and employers and that 200 men would be needed. Registration fee, $1. William Barclay Parsons of the Panama Canal Commission testified that he did not know Warner, and that he had never seen him. This letter, it seems, was sent to each member of the commission after Secretary Murphy of the commission advised of a warning of the Department against fake labor bureaus in connection with the building of the Panama Canal. In the letter Warner denounced the commission as an "idiot," and said that he himself was doing business under the laws of the State of New York.

Mr. Parsons testified that on receipt of the letter he wrote to the secretary asking if Warner had been authorized by the commission to do business. Mr. Why wired Luck in New York, and the commission had given no countenance to the scheme, and that he and the commission had looked upon the advertisement as a warning of the Department against fake labor bureaus in connection with the building of the Panama Canal. In the letter Warner denounced the commission as an "idiot," and said that he himself was doing business under the laws of the State of New York.

Inspectors Finn and Gilbert of the License Department, testified that they had arrested Warner in the guise of applicant for places as bookkeepers or timekeepers on the canal and that he had promised to get them jobs in New York. They also testified that they had arrested Warner and that he had promised to get them jobs in New York. They also testified that they had arrested Warner and that he had promised to get them jobs in New York.

Mr. Parsons swore that no contracts had been let yet except small ones for preliminary work and that the big contracts had been given out on which bids could be made. In fact, he said, it had not yet been decided to do the work by contract in November. The commission, he testified, had no arrangement with any labor bureau. As for civil and mechanical engineers, timekeepers, bookkeepers, etc., they would be employed under the civil service rules. There are plenty of laborers on the spot now to do all the work that will be required for months to come. Ultimately it may be necessary to get laborers from outside.

Under questions by Commissioner Keating, Mr. Warner admitted that he was not in constant communication with Government officials, as he had represented. He also admitted that he had no knowledge of the Panama Canal affairs, which were entirely derived from reading newspapers and magazines. He also admitted that he had no knowledge of the Panama Canal affairs, which were entirely derived from reading newspapers and magazines.
